PREFACE

This directory has been developed to provide business, industry, educational administrators and planners, students, parents and all other persons interested in or concerned with occupational education, a comprehensive picture of secondary and post-secondary occupational education programs offered by public and private institutions in New York State. Business and industrial leaders should find this directory particularly useful as a guide to the sources of skilled manpower and to the kinds of occupational training provided by various public and private agencies in the State.

The agencies offering occupational education, their addresses, and the programs they provide are listed alphabetically by county. Programs listed do not necessarily comprise the total program offerings of an institution. For example, nonoccupational courses are excluded. Included in the public secondary listings are the programs offered by the area occupational education centers, administered by Boards of Cooperative Education Services (BOCES) and the programs of the six major cities. The BOCES centers provide access to comprehensive occupational education programs for students from school districts whose size prevents them from providing a breadth of occupational programs. Not listed in this directory are the occupational education programs offered by public secondary local educational agencies. Nearly every public secondary school in the State offers programs in office and business education, and some with sufficiently large enrollments may have several occupational education offerings.

The public educational sections under each county are further subdivided to include post-secondary occupational education agencies (2-year community colleges and agricultural and technical colleges) and the occupational education programs they offer. Programs which are nondegree have been footnoted.

The listings of proprietary schools and programs follow those of the public school sections. This directory does not include all proprietary schools, but only those that are licensed, registered or approved by the New York State Education Department. Approval is granted on a yearly basis. As of the end of January 1972, eleven registered private business schools have been approved to award the degree of associate in occupational studies in certain specific programs registered by the Division of Higher Education, New York

State Education Department. These schools are identified by footnotes. For additional details, the reader is advised to contact the Division of Higher Education.

In addition to the programs listed for both the public and private sectors, many institutions offer evening courses for adults. These have not been included in the listing of programs since the types of adult courses offered may vary during the year due to changes in student interest and local manpower needs.

Additional information about the scope and composition of existing and planned occupational training can be obtained by directly contacting the institutions cited in this directory.
